Chapter 6. Building the Central Pacific Rail Road of California

- Cross the plains in 1849.
- How they went to California by sea.
- How the fanciful went to California before the transcontinental railroad.
- How they might have thought of going to California before the transcontinental railroad.
- How the fanciful returned from California.
- John A. MacQuarrie’s conception of the writing of the C. P. R.R.’s Articles of Incorporation.

Illustrations

- Eight major Central Pacific Associates.
- Theodore DeHone Judah, father of the Central Pacific Rail Road.
- Title page of the famous 1864 anti-railroad pamphlet The Great Dutch Flat Swindle.
- Governor Stanford: The Central Pacific’s first locomotive.
- Central Pacific Superintendent of Construction James H. Strobridge and family at Alta.
- Chinese laborers with hand tools and carts working on the Secrettown trestle.
- Railroad construction in Cisco.
- Early Central Pacific poster.
- Chinese camp and James H. Strobridge construction train in Nevada.
- Westward-bound covered wagons meet the Central Pacific’s Jupiter at Monument Point.
- Celebration at Promontory Summit when the Union Pacific and Central Pacific are joined.
- Leland Stanford in 1869, the year the transcontinental railroad was completed.
- The golden spikes before the nuggets were cut off.
- Celebration in San Francisco.

Chapter 7. Expansion of the Central and Southern Pacific Railroads

- The Central and Union Pacific railroads are part of an unbroken line linking China and Liverpool.
- Union/Central Pacific advertising poster: Trains are safer than Steamships.
- Ho! For California!! Central Pacific Railroad Company poster, early 1870s.
- Letter showing Leland Stanford as president of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company in 1876.
- Ways to get “Across the Continent” in 1878.

Chapter 8. The Stanfords Move to the City

- Property assemblage of Stanford’s California Street site.
- Stanford house in San Francisco, with Mark Hopkins’ house under construction.
- Stanford house in San Francisco viewed from the intersection of California and Powell streets.
- Stanford house in San Francisco viewed from the intersection of Pine and Powell streets.
- Dining room in the Stanford house in San Francisco.
- Skylight in the Stanford house in San Francisco.
- Jane Stanford’s billiard table in the Stanford house in San Francisco.
- Noh Hill locations in the late nineteenth and early twenty-first centuries.
- Leland Stanford’s California Street Cable Railroad.
- Car Stanford.

Chapter 9. Down on the Farm

- Twin Palo Alto trees, c.1886, looking southeastward away from Menlo Park.
- Single Palo Alto tree, looking from Palo Alto toward Menlo Park.
- Mexican ranchos with a modern Palo Alto overlay.
- Map of Stanford Farm land assemblage.
- From Birdseye View of Menlo Park, showing the Stanford house and gates on County Road.
- Close-up view of the gates of the Stanford house on County Road.
- Stanford country home on the Palo Alto Stock Farm, near Menlo Park.
- Interior of the country home.